

For many months there has been an extensive and intensive process of thought and action by students and faculty to plan for Religious Emphasis Week of 1951. Numerous things have been accomplished in that time, but by comparison much more needs to be done between now and November 11, 1951 when Religious Emphasis Week becomes a reality.

The existing committees will have to expand, new ones created, and to insure the anticipated results all have to give their enthusiastic support in promoting this all campus affair.

For this reason it was believed necessary to have a summary of what has been planned and more specifically what are the respective committee responsibilities. It is hoped that such a workbook will eliminate confusion and prove helpful in streamlining the efforts of all.

One of the earliest achievements of any committee was the establishment of the theme of the Week and the statement of purpose.

The theme of Religious Emphasis Week of 1951 is:

"Faith or Fear"

Representatives of the three major religious faiths worked in phrasing the statement of purpose as it is herewith presented:

"The purpose of Religious Emphasis Week, as a part of the greater campus religious opportunity is to help each individual find a deeper spiritual and intellectual dedication to God, that he may enrich his own life and the lives of this fellowmen."

Sincerely,
Paul Mayer
