ELUL THOUGHTS
THE MASTER IS CALLING

By Rev. H. Rabenstein

The summer is drawing to a close. The earth receives the final glow of the sun and its fruits approach their full maturity. Everything that grows and lives seeks to extract the maximum of ripeness from the last rays of the year. The apple paints itself with its final shade of red, the wine receives its richest sparkle. The ground gives its last sap, the corn stalks grow to their limit. The bee seeks the last drop of honey in the flower cup before it vanishes. The squirrel drags the last grain of corn to his winter store. The returning swallow carries the last straw to the nest. There is no time to be lost; the end is in sight. The Master will soon call. Everything seeks while there is still time to attain and to achieve the best that is in it. It does not wish to appear before its Master with fragmentary and half-finished work, with its year's performance still defective. The worm, the grasshopper, the beast, the bird, the stalk, the herb, the seed, the fruit, everything seeks "to fulfill the will of the Master to perform the task He has laid upon it." Shall then negligence, dereliction and perversity dwell in the habitations of man? Shall he harbor in his heart the spirit of thoughtlessness which lives in a dream world for the day only, without ever thinking that the end is close and the Master is calling, without looking in front or behind so as to seize the speeding hour by its wings and using the vanishing moment in order to prepare himself for eternity?

PRESIDENT'S GREETINGS

Shalom! The summer, to which we all looked forward, has passed quickly, and

I hope that it has been a pleasant and restful one for each of you.

Soon, it will be a time of repentance and rededication—a time of honest introspection for us, when we must frankly and sincerely analyze our own values, as well as draw up an accounting of our performance as Jews.

For us, as members of New Hope, there is a common commitment which embraces our homes, our synagogue and our community. To be so committed, is to feel deeply responsible and self-assured in the worth of our own group.

Let us renew our faith and hope—and pray for the miracle of peace and justice here, in Eretz Yisroel, in the world. It is this hope and prayer that is uppermost in our hearts.

My family joins me in extending our sincere and best wishes to one and all for health, happiness, contentment and SHALOM, in the New Year 5732.
