

asked Rabbi Sharfstein to become a member of the Vaad Rabbanei Lubavitch, the central committee of the Lubavitch Rabbis of the United States and Canada. They decide on policies regarding standards that the Lubavitch Rabbis should acquire. Rabbi Sharfstein is on the executive committee of this organization.

As Chief Rabbi, otherwise known as the Rabbi of the 'Vaad Hoier', Rabbi Sharfstein held many communal responsibilities. The Vaad Hoier oversees the kashrus of the city, comprising of visits to factories as well as supervising the butcher shops and caterers. All Beth Din matters were Rabbi Sharfstein's responsibility as well as making sure that all divorces and conversions are proper according to Jewish Law. Due to his expertise in the laws of building a Kosher Mikvah, he was instrumental in the building of the new Mikveh in Cincinnati, as well as being consulted on the building and renovation of many Mikvahs around the world. Zelig has traveled to many places to inspect and supervise the building of Kosher Mikvahs, including to Russia, Australia, Europe, Panama and to twenty five out of the fifty states of America.

Zelig was on the 'Vaad Hachinuch' of the Chofetz Chaim - Cincinnati Hebrew Day School, where he was a teacher
